We are a Bible centered group of believers desiring to grow in the full knowledge of Jesus Christ without compromise to His Word.

"If sinners will be damned, at least let them leap to hell over our bodies. And if they will perish, let them perish with our arms around their knees, imploring them to stay. If hell must be filled, at least let it be filled in the teeth of our exertions, and let not one go there unwarned and unprayed for."

THE CORNER

Dear Friends,

I was reading through the Gospel of Luke in response to my son's curiosity for more information about the war that took place in heaven as a result of Satan's rebellion. We had previously read about Satan's failed attempt to oust God (Rev. 12:7-9) and he wanted to know more about it. So I took him to Luke chapter ten and proceeded to read how Jesus sent out the seventy others to various cities to preach and heal and prepare the people for His coming. They joyfully returned in verse 17 saying, "Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name." But Jesus wasn't surprised by their remarks because He had seen Satan fall from heaven and He gave them power to overcome anything and everything. However, Jesus wasn't through and told them not to rejoice that they had power over the enemy but that their "names are written in heaven." I shared with my son the importance about having his name written in the Book of Life and took him to the Book of Revelation and the final judgment at the Great White Throne (Rev. 20:11-15).

Everyone that stands before God will have a book about their actions and thoughts but the most important one is the Book of Life. Your name can be added any time while you're here on earth but it's too late once you die. There will be many who will plead with God to give them a second chance but the problem is that they never read the B.I.B.L.E. (Basic Instructions Before Leaving Earth). It tells us the Book of Life is the most important book in the entire universe. That might seem blasphemous at first but the Bible is only a map that points us to God and the Book of Life. Whatever you may do on this earth, the only thing that will really matter is if your name is recorded in the Book of Life. It's that simple. Jesus said, "Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see: For I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them." (Luke 10:23-24)

After explaining this to my son, I asked him if he wanted to be born again (John 3:3-8) and have his name written in the Book of Life. I could see this big decision made him apprehensive and he said that he wanted to wait until the next day. So I asked him what would happen if he died the next day? He knew it would be too late and I reminded him that today is the day of salvation (Heb.3:7-13). I am happy to say that my son made the decision to serve God and have his name written in the Book of Life. Glory to God! The salvation plan is so simple but few find and embrace it (Matt.7:13-14). God is rich in mercy and will take anyone who calls out to Him. He just needs faithful people using the Bible to help point the way for the lost. (Rom. 10:8-17) Let's remember the words of Jesus, "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." (John 4:35)

May God richly bless you today,

CHAPTER SIX

HIPPIES, WOODSTOCK, LSD AND MORE

Having spent much time detailing these historical events, I want to briefly share a number of lies and horrible acts committed by the American government, the intelligence services of the CIA and FBI and the armed forces of our nation. Through research, defections by CIA agents and testimonies from people involved, it is clear that the CIA spawned and aided the hippie movement in the early 1960's.¹ The CIA set up operational houses in San Francisco, Los Angeles and New York, where they introduced the new drug of that time, LSD or "acid" as most people knew it. This sinister plan by people in the World Government was so evil that there are no words to describe it. Think of the millions of young Americans who were lured into the drug culture and had their lives wasted and destroyed.

The Woodstock Festival in the state of New York, August 15-18, 1969, was an event organized by the CIA. Most likely it was a joint effort of the CIA and the US Army Psychological Warfare Department, since both of these organizations used hardcore rock music in conjunction with drugs to achieve behavior changes in people. The large crowd of 250,000 persons was exposed to the worst possible music for three days and nights and all the drugs and sex they wanted and could endure. It showed the World Government how to control large crowds in the future as the need arose.

The local authorities already knew what would happen, so ask yourself the following questions: If drugs were illegal and many of the people there were teenagers, why didn't the local police raid the place? Why didn't the police request help from the FBI and New York State Police to control the crowd and protect the underage teenagers? With the smoke of marijuana hanging like a cloud, why did the police stand back and just let it happen? The answer is that it was a government sanctioned event and there was no interference due to "national security."

How many of you remember the American invasion of Panama in 1989? The dictator Manuel Noriega took refuge in a Roman Catholic embassy which was surrounded by American troops and blasted with loud rock music. Noriega eventually surrendered and was taken to the U.S. where he was sentenced to 40 years in a federal prison. What was his crime? He had worked many years for the CIA and was a kingpin in the drug smuggling operation run by the CIA but he started to take too many personal "cuts" and was taken down.

THE DOWNFALL OF PRESIDENT NIXON

President Richard Nixon had become more and more outspoken against Jewish power in the United States. In a recorded meeting with Billy Graham, the two discussed how the Jews control the media, banks and politics and American intelligence operators were told to take Nixon down.

RICHARD NIXON AND BILLY GRAHAM

It is extremely interesting that in 1972 when Richard Nixon was president, he met with Billy Graham in the Oval Office and their conversation was recorded and released by the National Archives in February 2002, when more than 500 hours of audio recording from the Nixon presidency was made available to the public. During their private conversation in the Oval Office, Graham expressed disdain for what he saw as Jewish domination of the media in the United States.

Graham: "This stranglehold has got to be broken or this country is going down the drain."

Nixon: "You believe that?"

Graham: "Yes, sir."

Nixon: "Oh boy. So do I. But I can't ever say that, but I believe it."

Graham: "No, but if you get elected a second time, then we might be able to do something."

At a later point in their conversation, Nixon raised the subject of Jewish influence in Hollywood.

Graham: "A lot of Jews are great friends of mine. They swarm around me and are friendly to me. Because they know that I am friendly to Israel... so forth. But they don't know how I really feel about what they're doing to this country, and I have no power and no way to handle them."

Nixon: "You must not let them know."

The Jewish controlled media later picked up the story and applied pressure to Graham because comments like these from a well-known world evangelist were extremely damaging to the Jewish leadership. On Friday, March 1, 2002 Billy Graham issued a press release, which stated the following:

“Although I have no memory of the occasion, I deeply regret comments I apparently made in an Oval Office conversation with President Nixon some 30 years ago. They do not reflect my views and I sincerely apologize for any offense caused by the remarks. Throughout my ministry, I have sought to build bridges between Jews and Christians. I will continue to strongly support all future efforts to advance understanding and mutual respect between our communities.”

Billy Graham was 83 years old and in bad health, battling Parkinson’s disease when this press release was made public. Whether it came from Billy Graham or his handlers is for the reader to judge. The fact remains that Billy Graham spoke forcefully about the Jews in 1972, but in 2002 he could not remember having said such a thing. This again shows the power of the American Jewish leadership, that even powerful politicians and religious leaders will bow to their demands.

WATERGATE

A plot was hatched in 1974 to have five men break into the office of the Democratic National Headquarters at the Watergate apartment complex in Washington, D.C., to steal information about the upcoming election campaign. The five man team was led by G. Gordon Liddy (right), former FBI agent, and E.

Howard Hunt, Jr. (left), a former CIA operator. Both Liddy and Hunt were sentenced to federal prison, but they never told who had controlled them. President Nixon was caught on tape discussing the break-in and the need to cover it up. At first he denied that he had any knowledge of the break-in, but when the Supreme Court ruled that the tapes had to be turned over to the prosecutors, Nixon had no other option than to resign. Vice President Gerald Ford was sworn in as the next president and his first order of business was to pardon Nixon, who was never impeached and never prosecuted. Nixon learned his lesson and never again discussed the issue in public. He was allowed to live and eventually died at the age of 81 on April 22, 1994.

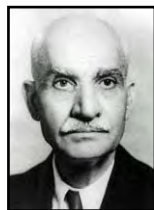

CHAPTER SEVEN

AMERICAN MEDDLING IN OTHER NATIONS

I want to spend a little time on Iran (Persia), since it is very much at the forefront in 2009. Prior to WWI, most of the Middle East was part of the Ottoman Empire, which was a 623 year Turkish empire from 1299 to 1922. Turkey had fought on the losing side in WWI and was disassembled by the allies into different states. Syria and Lebanon became French territories while Iraq, Jordan, and Palestine were taken over by England.²

Iran has a sad history of foreign powers meddling with it. Up to WWII, Russia dominated Iranian politics, which in reality was a vassal state to Russia. When WWI broke out in 1914, Iran became a battleground and saw German-Turkish troops battle

Russian troops and British troops. British government tried to occupy Iran when the war was over in 1918 but international pressure forced them to withdraw in 1921. Then their intelligence service helped stage a coup and that put an Iranian officer in charge by the name of Reza Khan (left), who took the name Reza Shah Pahlavi. But he did not trust the British or the Soviets, and during the rise of Nazi Germany in the 1930’s, he started to increase trade and political ties with the Nazis. In 1941, Soviet forces invaded Iran from the north and British troops invaded from Iraq. Iranian resistance was crushed and the country was divided into two zones administered by the Soviet’s and the British. Reza Shah Pahlavi was forced to resign by the British and exiled to South Africa and his son Mohammad Reza Shah Pahlavi (right) was put in charge.

During the three years of occupation, American military supplies flowed through Iran to the Soviet Union which used them to defeat the Germans.

The British forces turned over its zone to Iranian rule in 1945, but the Soviets did not leave until a year later in 1946.

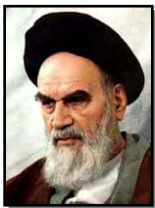

From 1951 through 1953, Mohammad Mosaddeq (right) was the Prime Minister of Iran and tried to nationalize the Iranian oil fields which up to that time were controlled by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, which in reality was run by the British government. This is when the American CIA was brought into play and staged a coup that ousted Mosaddeq. From that time on Reza Shah Junior (left) became an American controlled puppet, and the United States built up the Iranian army, navy and air force with the latest military hardware and became an American ally. In return for this tremendous military buildup, Iran became the main supplier of oil to Israel and also became a thorn in the flesh for the rest of the Arab nations since Iran was a friend of Israel.

² The Dove, 2004, pp.43-47

The American embassy in Tehran became a beehive of activity for the CIA. Many clandestine operations were done through the American bases in Iran and the CIA had free reign in the country. This became a sore point for the hardcore Muslims who hated the Russians, British and Americans with equal hatred. It was at this time that the Ayatollah Khomeini (right) came on the scene and started a revolt against the Shah and his corrupt American supported government and the dreaded secret police, the Savak. Khomeini blasted the Shah and the United States, and after he had been arrested once and released, in 1964, he was re-arrested and sent into exile. He ended up in Turkey and was kept as a guest of the Turkish intelligence service from 1964-1965. From 1965 to 1978 he lived in the Islamic holy city of Najaf in Iraq under the protection of Saddam Hussein, but the latter turned on him and he was sent to France where he lived from 1978-79 protected by the French intelligence service.

In 1979, the World Government decided that it was time to retire Reza Shah and the American government was told to use the CIA to take him out. Here is what I wrote in January of 2003:

“...Most of the Muslims in Iran are Shiites, and as the Shah steered Iran more and more toward a Western culture, the Shiite clergy became more and more angry. Leading them was the Mullah Ruhollah Khomeini. During 1962-63 Khomeini spoke out against the land reform, when land was taken from the Islamic leadership and given over to private ownership, and also to the emancipation of Iranian women. He was arrested and after a year in prison, he was exiled on November 4, 1964 to the Shiite holy city of An-Najaf in Iraq. From here he continued to lead a violent protest against the Shah of Iran. In the mid 1970’s Khomeini’s influence in Iran grew dramatically. He was calling for a violent overthrow of the Iranian regime to turn Iran back into a strict Muslim nation. This caused Saddam Hussein (left) to take heed, since his regime was a secular government, based upon support of Sunnite Muslim’s. On October 6, 1978, Saddam forced Khomeini to leave Iraq, and he was picked up by the French Secret Service, and settled in Neauphle-le-Chateau, a suburb outside Paris, France. From there, taped messages from Khomeini were smuggled en masse into Iran, to incite the Iranian people.

“The French government was unhappy with the situation in the Middle East; they had lost influence and wanted back in the market. Strikes and massive civil unrest in Iran forced the Shah to flee from Iran with his entire family and servants. They were flown out on American military transports and taken to a secluded U.S. base in Panama, then run by the U.S. military (read CIA). This base was used by the U.S. as a secluded rest area for its top brass. On October 22, 1979, the Shah entered the United States to be treated for Lymphatic cancer (cancer is a favorite assassination method of the CIA), and on November 4, 1979, Iranian students (Islamic secret police) stormed the American Embassy in Teheran and took the ambassador with some 50 American staff members hostage, and held it for more than a year. In order to take the pressure off the American government, the Shah was given asylum in Egypt by president Anwar-as-Sadat. The Shah died on July 27, 1980 at the age of 61.”

Shortly after the CIA had removed the Shah and his family from Iran, the French intelligence service flew Ayatollah Khomeini back to Iran where he was welcomed like a hero on February 1, 1979. On March 30-31, 1979, a referendum was held in Iran and 98% of the voters voted to abolish the monarchy and replace it with an Islamic Republic. On October 22, 1979, Iranian “students” stormed the American Embassy and held 55 American diplomats hostage for 444 days. This effectively cost President Jimmy Carter the presidency, and in the election of 1980, Ronald Reagan won the election to become the next president. The leader of the “students” was none other than the current Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, who comes from an Iranian Jewish family that converted to Islam many years ago, known as “crypto Jews.”³

After having lost Iran, the CIA moved its assets to Iraq and the U.S. started to build up Iraq’s military forces. On September 22, 1980, the Iraqi army invaded Iran and a bloody war began that was to last for the next eight years. Iran was in a dilemma because its entire military arsenal consisted of American weapons, but with the hostage situation and an embargo from the United States, they could not get spare parts for their military hardware. Negotiations took place in Algeria and an agreement was signed on January 19, 1981. The hostages were released the next day just minutes after Ronald Reagan had been sworn in but the American people didn’t know that secret shipments of spare parts to the Iranian military was part of the agreement.

In order to help Saddam Hussein win the war, the CIA started to transfer chemical weapons to Iraq like mustard gas. This was used on the Iranian soldiers and Iran protested loudly to the United Nations that Iraq was violating the Geneva Accord on warfare, but with the U.S. as the backer of Iraq, Iran got nowhere. The Soviets decided that it would be a good idea to bleed Iran and Iraq so that they would have an easier time taking these nations over in a weakened condition. As a result, the Iranians and the Iraqis fought and died with supplies from the U.S. and the Soviet Union. The Western bankers made a killing on this war and happy days were back when the American factories worked day and night to keep the combatants going.

The CIA sets up kings and rulers and it also takes them down. Any man put in power by the CIA is as safe as a chicken that is guarded by a fox. The preferred methods of execution by the CIA are heart attacks, strokes, cancer, drowning, suicide and air plane crashes.

RENEWED FRIENDSHIP WITH SADDAM HUSSEIN

Let me again quote what I wrote in 2003:

“The CIA wanted revenge, the Mossad wanted revenge and Israel and South Africa needed oil. Since the West had more cash than the Soviets, Saddam was dined and wined and promised massive help to build up his military forces. In return, he was to attack Iran and drive out Khomeini. During the month of September, 1980, the Iraqi military forces invaded Iran and tried to take the Iranian oil fields. But the Iraqi forces were not strong enough to overpower the Iranian military, despite its losses due to purges and a spare part embargo from the U.S. The invasion bogged down into a war that was to last for eight years.

“American CIA agents set up offices in Iraq and included American military personnel who were to direct the Iraqi forces. This was done under the Reagan administration. On a regular schedule, the Pentagon released satellite photographs, thus exposing the positions of the Iranian soldiers and equipment. The Mossad will never walk away from a possibility to make money. Since the Iranians only had American military hardware, they needed spare parts and ammunition. Because Israel has American equipment, including spare parts and ammunition, this was sold to North Korea who in turn used Russian military transports to fly them into Iran.

“The Soviets were unhappy that they had been aced out of Iraq, and they signed military assistance programs with the Iranians who then started to replace their American equipment with Russian. Since the Iraqis were having difficulty to get spare parts for their Russian equipment, the CIA purchased equipment and ammunition from nations like East Germany and other Eastern European nations, who were client states of the Soviet Union, and then resold them to Iraq, who paid for them with oil money which came from the American consumer whenever they bought gasoline for their cars. Everybody was making good money on the backs of the young men of Iran and Iraq who had to do the dying on the battle fields⁴.

WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION

“After awhile, it looked like Iraq was going to lose the war with Iran. This would upset the entire Jewish/American policy in the Middle East. It was decided that chemical and biological weapons would be given to Iraq and that they would be given assistance to develop nuclear weapons in order to defeat the Iranians. Saddam Hussein’s education was that of an attorney, but he never finished his studies. Instead he was educated in murder, torture, blackmail and control of people through fear and intimidation. Thus, he was unable to lead a highly technical weapons program; it had to be done by experts from other nations.

“The United States was going to supply the majority of the technical assistance, including material, in conjunction with the following countries: China, France, England, Japan, the Netherlands (Holland), Belgium, Spain, Sweden and Germany.

“Despite that the American Congress in the mid 1970’s had passed laws forbidding American contractors to export chemical, biological and nuclear weapons technology, the CIA set up the network to do that work.

“In the early 1980’s American defense laboratories delivered quantities of Anthrax for the arming of Iraq with biological weapons. Iraqi military and armament experts were brought to the United States where they were further educated and trained. This was during Ronald Reagan’s presidency. North Korea was selling missiles (Scuds) to the Iraqis, so they could have a delivery system. The Soviet Union and France cooperated in building nuclear reactors in Iraq, with the permission of the American government. Saddam Hussein was on top, he was floating in money and he was being armed by the most devastating weapons of mass destruction. Hundreds of the most advanced defense contractors in the world had set up shop in Iraq, building production facilities for these weapons of mass destruction.

“Saddam received help with nuclear, biological, chemical, rocket and conventional weapons. Despite the fact that all forms of nerve gases had been outlawed by almost all nations in a world treaty years ago in Switzerland, no one paid attention to it. Soon the Iranians began to cry foul and report that their troops were gassed by mustard gas and other deadly gases developed by the Germans and the British during WWI.

“Immediately the CIA, the Mossad, and all the other intelligence services started damage control, and since they had control over the media, people in the world were told that the Iranians were crying foul because they were losing the war. Thus, when tens of thousands of young Iranian soldiers were either dead or left in a comatose state, the world stated that it was not true; it was all propaganda coming out of Iran.

“A total of 24 American corporations, 80 German corporations, 3 Chinese corporations, 8 French corporations, 17

⁴ The Dove, Autumn 1999, pp.42-45

British corporations, 6 Russian corporations, 5 Japanese corporations, 3 Dutch corporations, 7 Belgian corporations, 3 Spanish corporations and 2 Swedish corporations trained, armed and built facilities in Iraq from 1980 up to the end of that decade. Add to this list the U.S. Department of Energy, Defense, Commerce and Agriculture, which are federal agencies. The U.S. government laboratories, Lawrence Livermore, Los Alamos and Sandia trained Iraqi nuclear scientists and gave non-fission material for construction of a nuclear bomb.

“By that time, America was Saddam’s best friend, and with a super power like the U.S. behind him, he thought he had it made. After eight years of bloody fighting, the Iranians were running out of fresh new soldiers, and it was obvious that they were going to lose the war. If they had hated the United States before, they now loathed the U.S. for arming Iraq with weapons of mass destruction. One American general made the following remark: ‘What’s the difference if the Iranian soldiers die from a bullet or from gas, death is death.’ In 1988, Khomeini agreed to a cease fire.”⁵

AFGHANISTAN AND THE CIA

The Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan on December 24, 1979 with more than 100,000 soldiers and established an Afghan Communist regime backed up by the Soviet Army. It didn’t take long for the CIA to get involved since the Cold War was still in full operation. As thousands of Afghan mujahedeen (freedom fighters) wanted to fight the Soviets, training camps were set up in Pakistan in the same areas where the Taliban is now in control and the CIA began to pour in weapons, ammunition and other war supplies to build up an insurgent force against the Soviets. In order to hide this as an American CIA operation, weapons were purchased from Eastern European nations which were still under the control of the Soviets. It was a nasty black market in which the governments of Poland, Czechoslovakia and other nations tried to make some extra money on Soviet arms.

The Soviets brought in fighter bombers and helicopters and the Afghan fighters started to lose and the CIA decided to provide them with anti-aircraft missiles. First, they brought in old Soviet handheld missiles but they were ineffective. Next British missiles were brought in but they were difficult to operate. This finally led to the American made Stinger missile which took a great toll on Soviet aircraft.

Osama bin Laden was a young man straight out of college who joined the fight in Afghanistan in 1979. By 1984 the CIA had realized that he had some talents, and instead of fighting the Soviets, he was put in charge of bringing in money, arms and fighters from other Muslim nations. As he went about this work, he learned how to build a network of freedom fighters which the Soviets called terrorists and trained them to be skilled in planting roadside bombs and other useful skills to destroy the Soviet military operations in Afghanistan.

The Soviets called it quits in 1989 and withdrew from Afghanistan two years before the collapse of their empire. This was their “Vietnam” as thousands of soldiers had been killed, more than one million Afghan civilians had been killed and millions had fled the country. Afghanistan had been wasted by almost ten years of warfare and the different warlords in the nation fought for control of what remained. The CIA had no interest in rebuilding the nation since its aim was to fight the Soviets and cause them as much damage as possible. The nation was abandoned by American forces and left to fend for itself. This created a great anger and bitterness among Osama bin Laden and the Afghan freedom fighters. A great hate replaced the admiration once held for America among these men.

BACK TO THE MIDDLE EAST

The government of Israel which is controlled by the Zionist World Federation wanted both Iran and Iraq to be reduced to third world nations, since they posed the greatest threat to Israel’s security. The governments of England and the United States wanted control over the oil fields in these two nations and the Soviets wanted to expand into the Middle East. Thus, the war between Iraq and Iran was a bonanza for all these nations and it was at this point that the most bizarre episode in American history was to be played out.

CHAPTER EIGHT

THE IRAN-CONTRA AFFAIR

The CIA was up to its ears in secret wars in Angola and Central America during the Reagan administration. A parallel organization to the CIA called the National Security Council (NSC) existed in the United States with a larger budget and more people employed than the CIA but it was not well known by the American people.

In 1984 Vice Admiral John M. Poindexter held the title of National Security Advisor to President Reagan and the day to day operations officer in the basement of the White House was Lt. Colonel Oliver North. During 1981-1986 Col. North was involved in many different covert operations. Both men were Roman Catholics and Poindexter was also a member of the powerful Knights of Malta.

The Cold War had spread to Central America and the Soviets had used rebels in 1979 to topple Anastasio Somoza, the CIA puppet from power in Nicaragua with his very corrupt regime. In 1984 Congress passed the Boland Amendment banning direct military aid to the Contras in Nicaragua who were the CIA army fighting the Communist Sandinistas in Nicaragua under control of Daniel Ortega.

John Poindexter

Oliver North

Anastasio Somoza

Since President Carter had openly branded Somoza as a dictator, suppressing freedom, the CIA relied upon Israel to supply the Somoza regime with weapons and ammunition. The Sandinistas became the rulers and the CIA backed regime was forced into the jungles and a new little war began. Somoza fled in a Nicaraguan transport aircraft to Florida but was denied in his request for asylum by President Carter. He was accepted in the country of Paraguay, but on September 17, 1980, he was assassinated at the age of 54 by a “Sandinista” commando team. It is always convenient for the CIA puppets to be killed once they are out of power. “Dead men do not talk,” an expression the CIA has adhered to since WWII.

Let me share the following if you are reading this and do not have a lot of knowledge of military campaigns. For the CIA to keep its different armies going in the various regions in the world, it takes a lot more than just equipping soldiers with weapons and sending them out to fight. First, there needs to be training bases; American advisors are used for this purpose. Secondly, the troops need shelter, food, clothing, medical supplies, washing of clothing, and repair of weapons, trucks, helicopters and airplanes. The soldiers who are recruited to fight as “freedom fighters” (“terrorists” for those they are fighting) have families who must be supported with money, food and clothing. Hospitals must be secured for those who are wounded. To do all of this takes thousands of American servicemen to make sure all these supplies are getting to the war zone. A CIA war is not cheap and it is paid for by the American taxpayer. For a president to say that he does not know of operations like this is a lie because his cabinet has to submit budgets for each of these operations and the president is always kept informed.

William Casey was the CIA director during this time and huge military bases had been set up in Guatemala, El Salvador and Panama. Casey turned to Robert C. McFarlane, who was the National Security Advisor for President Reagan in 1984. Casey and McFarland devised a plan to raise money for the war in Nicaragua. It was codenamed, “The Enterprise,” and was to be run by two businessmen, Major General Richard Secord and Iranian born Albert Hakim who died of a heart attack at the age of 66 in 2003. Secord had been stationed in Iran in the 1970’s as a CIA agent and Hakim had long had ties to the CIA.

Casey and McFarland had to overcome two hurdles in the form of the Boland amendment and the embargo on arms sales to Iran. This was an intricate operation by the CIA, NSC, Israeli Mossad and the Soviet KGB. Hakim was a known weapons dealer to nations, and the Iranians were contacted and asked if they were interested in buying American arms and spare parts for its armed forces. The Iranians had the money from the oil they were selling and they were in a bloody war with Iraq and needed the spare parts. They could not buy them on the open arms market due to the embargo. Thus, the Iranians were more than happy to send a shopping list of military hardware to Hakim which was secured from military stockpiles U.S. suppliers and sent to Israel who had “officially” ordered the material.

Once these military shipments arrived in Israel, they were loaded on covert Israeli cargo planes and flown to Iran. The Iranians officially blasted the Jews as the scum of the world and called for the destruction of Israel but they happily paid Israel in U.S. dollars for the shipments. Israel took a nice cut for its services and the rest of the money was then channeled to the U.S. where some went to the treasury and the rest went to Casey’s group to pay for the war in Nicaragua.

Secord was in charge of buying weapons for the Contras and used the money from the Iran sales to purchase arms on the open market. The weapons, ammunition and other supplies he purchased were then flown to CIA bases in Central America on CIA cargo planes. But the CIA cargo planes did not return empty as the CIA is the biggest drug corporation in the world and its airplanes were loaded with drugs like cocaine and marijuana from Central and South America. The airfield at Mena in Arkansas next to the border of Oklahoma was the hub for the CIA air operation.⁶ Governor Bill Clinton was informed of the operation and was given special treatment and compensation by the CIA through its intermediaries.⁷

One of the kingpins of the Mena operation was Adler Berriman “Barry” Seal (1939-1986). He was hired as a young man by the CIA to be a pilot during the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba. After that he enlisted in the Army Special Forces and from there went to work for TWA and eventually became one of its youngest pilots. An undercover federal agent lured him into a trap where he was asked to fly explosives to anti-Castro forces in Mexico, and because of his arrest, he was fired from the airline. He then became an “aviation consultant” specializing in Central and South America which was a cover up for drug smuggling. Most likely this business was a CIA front, because Seal later became heavily involved in CIA operations in and around Mena. By 1980, he was working for the Medellin Cartel in Columbia and at the same time he became an informer for the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA).

During this time he was one of the top players of the Mena operation and worked out deals with Governor Clinton to protect the operations. But one can never trust the CIA and his work as an undercover agent for the DEA was leaked to the press. At the time there were legal proceedings in Washington D.C. with Seal as the star witness, who testified that the Medellin cartel was working hand in hand with the Sandinistas in Nicaragua. This was very important to President Reagan and his White House staff because they wanted Congress to lift the ban on weapon sales to the Contras. It was obvious that Seal knew too much and he was shot to death on February 19, 1986 in his car on a street in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. The blame was laid on hit men from the Medellin cartel, but in these murky waters of assassins, it was most likely a job ordered by the CIA because dead men do not talk.

MORE MURDERS

CIA director William Casey was ordered to testify before a Senate panel on December 15, 1986, about the CIA’s involvement in the Iran/Contra affair. But he suffered two seizures the day before the hearings and was taken to the hospital where they operated on “malignant tumor” and died twenty four hours after the congressional hearings began. The people running the CIA have no loyalty or sentimentality, and once the truth threatens to come out, they immediately call their assassins in the form of a street thug, gunman or a medical doctor.

CIA director William Colby (1973-1976) had a long history in intelligence work and had been the CIA station chief in Saigon, Vietnam from 1959-1962 and then was sent back in 1968 to take charge of the “Phoenix Project” which was designed to identify and kill or capture the Vietnamese men and women fighting for the communists. At times whole villages were wiped out in mass executions. According to official U.S. figures some 81,000 Viet Cong were captured and 226,000 killed. Colby came back to the U.S. in 1971 and in 1973 became director of the CIA. By 1996 Colby had become a liability for the CIA, since he had written a book and exposed things that the CIA didn’t want the American people to know.

The ghost of the Army chemist Frank Olson had been haunting the CIA since 1975, when the U.S. Government was forced in a settlement to pay $750,000 to Frank Olson’s family. Frank had been working in the top secret special operations at Fort Dietrick, Maryland, on biological warfare and the mind control program MKULTRA. For some reason the CIA decided that Frank had become a liability and he was given a dose of LSD which made him mentally unstable. He was sent to New York to be treated in a hospital and stayed at a hotel together with his CIA handlers. On November 28, 1953 he was thrown out the window from the tenth floor and died on impact with the ground.

In 1994 his son Eric Olson had his father exhumed, and when his remains were taken for an autopsy, it was discovered that he had trauma to his head before he had been thrown out the window. In 1996 the district attorney of Manhattan opened an investigation and a grand jury was called. William Colby was murdered the same day that the Manhattan district attorney got permission to set up a grand jury. Colby was an avid outdoors man and decided to take a canoe trip at Rock Point, Maryland, on a cold day on April 28, 1996 during which he lost control and was thrown out and drowned. This was a typical CIA assassination where a man is taken out on a boat and then held under the water until he is dead. Then the canoe was released to drift and the body was thrown in the water. Remember, dead men do not talk.

THE IRAN/CONTRA COVER IS BLOWN

In 1985 the Mossad contacted Vice Admiral Poindexter and told him that moderate Iranians were opposed to the current regime in Iran and wanted to secure weapons from the United States to be used in the war against Iraq. If the U.S. helped the moderate Iranians, in time they would overthrow Ayatollah Khomeini and Iran would once more come into the sphere of the United States.”

Remember that arms sales had been flowing for some time to Iran but during this time a number of Americans had been taken hostage in Lebanon by groups controlled by Iran. Every night on American television the pictures of the hostages were shown and their story was told and how many days they had been held captive. Thus, the Jewish controlled media was building pressure on the Reagan administration to do something. With this two pronged attack on the administration, President Reagan caved in and agreed to make a deal. Robert McFarlane flew in to Tehran on a CIA aircraft to start negotiations. He offered the sale of 2,000 TOW antitank missiles, 18 Hawk missile batteries and 200 spare parts for the Hawk batteries. The Iranians agreed and paid 30 million dollars for the deal.

Manucher Ghorbanifar was an Iranian international weapons dealer and friend of the Iranian prime minister who was used in securing the weapons on the open market, picked up by Israeli aircraft and flown into Iran. Oliver North was not happy at having Israel as a partner because too much money was siphoned off by the Israeli government. North suggested to Poindexter that the NSA would have a $15 million markup, while Ghorbanifar would get a 41% markup. The Iranians became upset by having to pay the inflated prices but accepted the deal since the war was not going well for them. These shipments continued from May to November 1986.

What the Reagan administration did not know was that if you double cross Jewish interests, there is a price to pay. On November 3, 1986, the Lebanese magazine "Ash-Sera" exposed the American arms dealing with Iran as the Mossad had leaked the information to them. This could not have come in a more inconvenient time for the Reagan administration since the Nicaraguan Sandinista government had shot down a C-123 transport plane over Nicaragua. This was a former U.S. Air Force cargo plane that had been transferred to the CIA black fleet of aircraft. The two pilots were killed in the crash, but Eugene Hasenfus, a former U.S. marine and CIA contractor survived. The CIA had specified that no parachutes could be used on clandestine flights since they didn't want survivors but Hasenfus had disregarded this order and parachuted to safety. He and the weapons intended for the Contras were paraded by Nicaraguan soldiers and shown for many nights on American television.

REAGAN ADMINISTRATION SPIN

White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan pointed the blame to Robert McFarlane as a renegade government official who was totally responsible for this sordid affair. McFarlane became angry and refused to be the "fall guy" and sent a message to Poindexter that he was going to sue the government for libel and not tolerate the lies from Regan. McFarlane had forgotten that one doesn't mess with the CIA, and according to police reports, he tried to commit suicide by taking an overdose of valium on February 9, 1987. For some reason he survived but the message was clear, "Shut up and take the punishment." In 1988, he plead guilty in federal court to four counts of withholding information from Congress for his role in the Iran/Contra cover-up. He was sentenced to two years' probation and a $20,000 fine. He was pardoned with the other key players in the scandal on Christmas Eve in 1992. The rule for all CIA operators is that if you are caught, do not talk, take all the blame and in time you will be bailed out.

PROTECTING PRESIDENT REAGAN

For a while it looked that President Reagan was going to go the same way that Nixon did and be forced to resign. But for some reason the World Zionist Federation decided to keep him and accept the sacrifice of the people involved who had circumvented Israel out of the profits on arms sales. Reagan was forced to respond since the Iranian government had confirmed and issued a report to the world's media outlets, and on November 13, 1986, the great communicator spoke on prime time television from the Oval Office to defuse the political storm that his administration had caused. Here are some excerpts from his speech:

"My purpose was...to send a signal that the United States was prepared to replace the animosity between the United States and Iran with a new relationship...At the same time we undertook this initiative, we made clear that Iran must oppose all forms of international terrorism as a condition of progress in our relationship. The most significant step which Iran could take, we indicated, would be to use its influence in Lebanon to secure the release of all hostages held there."⁸

Oliver North was given orders to start shredding documents regarding all activities that had to do with arms sales and the support of the Contras, which he did during November 21-25th. After he had completed this job, he was fired by President Reagan and hung out as the scapegoat. During the month of July, 1987 he was summoned to testify before Congress. Later he was indicted on 16 felony counts and went to trial in 1989. He was convicted on three counts on May 4, 1989, and sentenced July 5, 1989 to a three year suspended prison term, with two years probation, a $150,000 fine and 1,200 hours of community service. North had been cast as a strong patriotic Marine with the rank of Lt. Colonel, strongly anti-communist, a born again Christian even though he stayed in the Roman Catholic Church and with strong right wing political leanings.

Who came to the aide of Oliver North? None other than the Jewish run ACLU. With their lawyers his conviction was vacated. The prosecution took it to the Supreme Court which refused to hear the case. All charges were summarily dismissed on September 16, 1991. Admiral John Poindexter was convicted on multiple felony counts in April, 1990 but his conviction was reversed in 1991.

Both Poindexter and Oliver North were great team players. They were willing to be convicted of master-minding the Iran/Contra affair and testify that President Reagan knew nothing about it in order to save their lives. The American people demanded justice and McFarlane, Poindexter and North were convicted. But in the end they escaped punishment and became very successful in business while the Reagan legacy was saved. In 1992 President George H.W. Bush pardoned six convicted officials: Elliott Abrams, Duane R. Clarridge, Alan Fiers, Clair George, Robert McFarlane and Caspar Weinberger.

BUT SOMEONE HAD TO DIE!

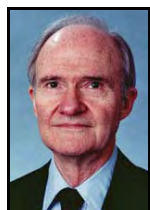

Ronald Reagan was an actor before he became a politician. On November 25, 1986, he created a Special Review Board to look into the matter of the Iran/Contra affair. Even though Reagan was under a cloud of suspicion, he appointed three men to investigate the matter. The chairman was former Senator John Tower from Texas, former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie and former National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft. In a hearing before this commission on December 2, 1986, Reagan first admitted that he had authorized the arms sales to Iran but later he told them that he could not remember. However, in his autobiography Reagan acknowledges authorizing shipments to Israel.⁹

John Tower

Edmund Muskie

Brent Snowcroft

The chickens reported to the fox on February 26, 1987, when the Tower commission submitted its 200 page finding. They had interviewed 80 witnesses, including the president himself and two arms dealers. Blame was laid at the feet of Oliver North, John Poindexter, Caspar Weinberger and some others. Reagan was cleared of knowing anything about the Iran/Contra affair but that he had been sloppy and should have had better control of his administration. The Democratic Congress issued their own report on November 18, 1987, that President Reagan should have known what his national security advisers were doing.

Since William Casey was dead and all documents concerning the affair had been shredded by Poindexter and North, the wrecking crew had done its job and once again the American people were deceived by their elected leaders and civil servants. The final man to die was Senator John Tower when his airplane was sabotaged and crashed over Georgia on April 5, 1991. He was killed by the CIA in order to make sure that the corpse of the Iran/Contra affair would never again be exhumed. After all, dead men do not talk!

PRESIDENT REAGAN'S FIX

For those of you who lived during this period in the history of the United States, you will remember that Reagan was called the "Teflon President" because nothing stuck to him. Here is how Reagan mopped up the affair and reconnected with the American people. In a speech that was televised to the American people on March 4, 1987, he shared the following statements:

"The reason I haven't spoken to you before now is this: You deserve the truth. And as frustrating as the waiting has been, I felt it was improper to come to you with sketchy reports, or possibly even erroneous statements, which would then have to be corrected, creating even more doubt and confusion. There's been enough of that.

First, let me say I take full responsibility for my own actions and for those of my administration. As angry as I may be about activities undertaken without my knowledge, I am still accountable for those activities. As disappointed as I may be in some who served me, I'm still the one who must answer to the American people for this behavior.

A few months ago I told the American people I did not trade arms for hostages. My heart and my best intentions still tell me that that's true, but the facts and the evidence tell me it is not. As the Tower board reported, what began as a strategic opening to Iran deteriorated, in its implementation, into trading arms for hostages. This runs counter to my own beliefs, to administration policy, and to the original strategy we had in mind."¹⁰

The tragedy is that the American people were dumbed down and easily swayed by the media. When the Iran/Contra scandal was first revealed to the American people in November of 1986, the approval rating of the president stood at 67% and then dropped to 46%. By January 1989 his approval rating had gone up to 64%. With the dismantling of the Berlin wall in 1989, and the re-unification of Germany, the freedom of the East European nations from the Soviets, no one longer cared about the Iran/Contra affair. After all, President Reagan led us to victory over the communists, what more could we ask for? Did it really matter that the laws of the United States had been trampled and that people had lied under oath? Life was good.

Speaking different languages and having a college degree are a plus but you must also be a great liar, be tolerant of all kinds of lifestyles and cannot have any morals. Being open to alcohol, drugs and sex is especially good but being a born again Christian is not and may disqualify you.

TATTOOS AND TEENS

Dear Friend,

I have often struggled with wanting to get a tattoo or getting some part of my body pierced. Society has presented tattoos and piercings to us as something rebellious and cool, for those who can't stand their parents and want to become independent

Well, it isn't cool.

One will often see in movies that the child will go out and get something pierced or get a tattoo on themselves. But rebellion is not cool. If you believe in something and it was founded on the right reasons and you can find Biblical text to support it, then by all means pursue it. Rebellious against someone in position of authority is not a just cause.

For some it may not be rebellion. They may find it as a display of art or a defining quality. A symbol of, "this is who I am," but you don't need to mark your skin to prove that. You do not need to tattoo a heart on your wrist to represent your compassionate spirit. You do not need to tattoo a name across your heart to represent your dedication to your partner. You can show your love through how you act towards them.

God specifically states to keep your temple holy. 1 Corinthians 3:16-17, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are."

Not only can you tattoo your body but you can tattoo/mark your heart as well. If you keep impure things close and dear to you, you are only hurting yourself. God is like a loving father and I know there are many out there that might not have a father or may have had an abusive one. But God is the ultimate father. He cares about us. If you truly think about every rule God has ever set for us, you can see the good in it and the reasoning.

Take sex before marriage, for example. Having sex with someone will create a soul tie between you and that person. Leaving you unable to fully detach yourself from them and unable to have a truly functioning relationship or at least have one as great as it could have been. If you don't see issue in that then think about it from a medical stand-point. You can retract a plethora of diseases from having sex with someone.

God speaks what He means and says exactly what He means.

The devil is the master of perversion, God preaches against everything impure. Tell me why you would want to open the door to the devil and make it even harder for you to live, when living through everyday life is already hard as is.

I have often stopped and gone over my life and what it was I was listening to and what I held dear to me, what clothes I wore, and what I had plastered onto my walls. I have found out that I was trying to cater to my own selfish desires. I had been doing what would make me feel good about myself without thinking about the consequences.

I have come in contact with many people who were once believers in Christ or who might have been, but no longer have the desire to be and hold resentment and anger towards Christians. If asked why they disliked the practice so much, they often answered with how they were treated or how they saw Christians act. What people don't realize is that although you may be trying to help someone out, you need to realize what you look like from an outside party.

What messages are you sending?

I end with this before you make a decision like tattooing your body or piercing your skin, know this. That it was stated as wrong in the Bible as being forbidden Leviticus 19:28 "Ye shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you: I am the LORD," and that it is an ancient ritual that goes far back. It is a doorway for demons to enter into your life and have the right to do as they please. You cannot be pure if you have impure things in your life. Everything you do in life is marked down. If not in a bibliography like those of the well known, but down in the book the Lord keeps. I will leave you with two questions to think about. Is it worth eternal damnation and suffering? Is the temporary worth your life?

Regards,

From one who cares

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR

The tattoo epidemic is not only sweeping over the unsaved people in the world but is also making great inroads into the Church of Jesus Christ. We have more such articles available on our website that deal with the following topics:

OUR PROBLEM IS UNREPENTANT SIN

By Coach Dave Daubenmire

“For the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do. Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me. I find then a law, that, when I would do good, evil is present with me. For I delight in the law of God after the inward man...” Romans 7:19-25

Sin. It is a word that you don't hear a lot about any more. Like so many other things in America the idea of sin has been sanitized. We call it a “mistake,” or an “error,” or a “miss-step,” but no matter how much lipstick and make-up you put on the pig, underneath it is still a pig.

Politicians don't lie, they “miss-speak.” Governments don't steal, they “tax.” Schools don't educate, they indoctrinate. Whoremongers don't commit adultery; they “sleep around.” Yep, in America today we rarely call things what they are. Politically correct synonyms are now the white-washed lexicon for long established prohibitions.

As I asked in a commentary five years ago, Whatever Happened to Sin?¹

All of the problems that our nation is dealing with are a direct result of sin. We live in a fallen world where the heart of man is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked (Jeremiah 17:9). We used to understand that. We used to teach it to our children. For man, sinning is as natural as breathing. No one has to be taught how to be selfish. But today, we have bought into the fable that men are naturally good.

All of the evidence leads to a different verdict. America has a sin problem.

Sin is an individual problem that impacts us all. The price of it is death (Romans 6:23). But somewhere along the path to liberation sin has been sanitized. You see, my sin does not just affect me; it touches others in a way we cannot even understand. Sin would be bad enough if my soul was the only one injured by my disobedience but, unfortunately, individual sin bleeds over on the rest of us. Collateral damage is what Timothy McVeigh called it.

The idea that my sin doesn't harm others is preposterous. Hitler sinned. His lust for power led him to murder. How many lives have been impacted by his actions? All Bernie Madoff did was steal, but his purloining rattled the foundations of the financial world. Margaret Sanger only wanted to be “liberated” but her selfish heart lead to women's “reproductive rights” and the destruction of millions of lives. Hugh Hefner's crusade was waged to feed his natural sexual attractions but it opened the floodgates to the porn industry.

The heart is deceitful above all things. Your heart can convince you that good is bad and bad is good. LBJ thought that government charity was the “Christian thing” to do when he created the “Great Society”, turning on the spigot of legalized government coveting. Lincoln thought he was doing a good thing when he over-ran the rights of individual states. Obama believes the government's function is to take care of us from womb to tomb. “I hear tell the road to hell is paved with good intentions.”

Civil laws are nothing more than government's attempt to control the sin nature of the individual. Although the moral anarchists want to tell us that we can't “legislate morality”, the obvious fact is that is exactly what the purpose of laws are. Stealing is wrong, so, in an effort to stop it, we make laws to punish it. “Law-breaking” is the moniker we put on the behavior and fines and incarceration are the penalty of civil-sins.

But external restraints are never enough to control inward desires. No matter how many laws we create someone will always find a way around it. In fact, we hire “lawyers” to poke escape hatches in those restraints. Over the centuries our law-books have exploded from ten simple rules, to law libraries full of the failures of “legislating” morality.

Jesus simplified it even more when he cut the list to two. That is why I love the Law of God.² If we follow it, no one gets hurt. Yet we are hell-bent on removing its clear teaching from the minds of our children. We can't build enough prisons to control the hearts of un-regenerated men.

You see, God's plan was simple. Knowing the heart of man, He put into place a set of controls (government) for society and it began, first and foremost, with the individual.

The ultimate goal in God's justice system is for the individual to establish self-control. If we fail to teach to our children the importance of self-government by obeying the “law written on the heart” then all true liberty will be lost (Romans 1:16-32). Liberty comes through obedience. Disobedience (sin) brings a loss of freedom. Failure to control ones inward desires leads to outside controls.

² www.newswithviews.com/Daubenmire/dave61.htm

Family is the next level of government that the Lord put into place. From the earliest age parents are admonished to “train up a child in the way he should go.” (Proverbs 22:6) It is the role of the parents to help the child strength his/her inward controls. In the simplest of terms it is the parents’ duty to teach a child to govern himself so that others will not have to. Because the enemy has directed his laser at the destruction of the family this safety net of first response has eroded.

If the child fails to control his behavior the responsibility falls to the parents. If no parental controls are in place, or if the controls are ineffective then the family turns to the church for restoration.

The church is God's sanctuary between the people and the civil magistrates. But the church has dropped the ball. Having bought into the church growth movement, relationship evangelism, and the Purpose Driven bilge, the Law of God is no longer used as the antidote to the Spiritual AIDS ravaging America. As the church goes...so goes the nation. A little leaven infects the whole crowd and our toleration of sin in the camp has weakened the cultural immune system....the church. The ineffective “religious system” has given sway to the civil authorities.

Moral anarchy reigns supreme as we turn to amoral government to harness the passions of men. Morality is only relative in the absence of truth. Today, America's prisons are full and her churches are empty as we continue to ignore the clear warning of our founders.

“We have no government armed in power capable of contending with human passions unbridled by morality and religion. Our Constitution was made only for a religious and moral people. It is wholly inadequate for the government of any other.” -John Adams.

Government has usurped the authority that God originally gave to the people. We have surrendered the rights of the individual to the sovereignty of Caesar.

Samuel Adams, the Father of the American Revolution said:

"Let divines and philosophers, statesmen and patriots, unite their endeavors to renovate the age by impressing the minds of men with the importance of educating their little boys and girls, inculcating in the minds of youth the fear and love of the Deity...and leading them in the study and practice of the exalted virtues of the Christian system."

James Madison, The Father of the Constitution opined,

“We have staked the whole future of American civilization, not on the power of government, far from it. We've staked the future of all of our political institutions on our capacity...to sustain ourselves according to the Ten Commandments of God.”

I wonder if these boys could get elected today...

America's leadership is swimming in sin. They are incapable of delivering us from our body of death. We will never change America through the political process. Changing one set of sinners for another will not save us. Only a return to Biblical morality and the Grace of God can.

If there is a decay of conscience, the pulpit is responsible for it. If the public press lacks moral discrimination, the pulpit is responsible for it. If the church is degenerate and worldly, the pulpit is responsible for it. If the world loses its interest in religion, the pulpit is responsible for it. If Satan rules in our halls of legislation, the pulpit is responsible for it. If our politics become so corrupt that the very foundations of our government are ready to fall away, the pulpit is responsible for it. Let us not ignore this fact, my dear brethren; but let us lay it to heart, and be thoroughly awake to our responsibility in respect to the morals of this nation. -Charles Finney³

“To educate a man in mind and not in morals is to educate a menace to society.” -Teddy Roosevelt.

Until we recognize the source of our trouble this nation is doomed. America does not have a political problem. America's problem is sin.

HEALTH SCANDAL – MONSANTO'S GMO PERVERSION OF FOOD

By Byron J. Richards, CCN

In the 2010 growing season Monsanto plans to unleash its latest Frankenfood experiment on the American and Canadian public, a new version of genetically mutated corn with eight abnormal gene traits called Genuity SmartStax corn. It is the culmination of an astonishing scandal that has been steadily building over the past decade. During this time Monsanto's mutated seeds have grown to 90% of the U.S. soy crop and 85% of the corn crop – and wheat is next on their agenda. Their efforts have been marked by corporate bullying and have drawn the attention of the Justice Department who is conducting an antitrust investigation. All the while they have been spending millions on lobbying to fast track their agenda before the American public even realizes what hit them. Monsanto is making an ominous power play to corner the worldwide market on food and seeds. In the process they are adversely altering the very nature of food itself.

Few people would eat Monsanto's "food" if they understood what it was or knew that they were eating it. President Obama and his family won't eat it. Neither did the Bush family. Even a Monsanto employee cafeteria rejects it. This is no laughing matter. Your health and the health of your children and grandchildren are at stake. It seems more like a scene from a horror flick than something happening in modern day America. Imagine your digestive tract turned into a Roundup Ready herbicide factory and other warped genetic signals slowly and progressively rotting away your health. Unlike acute food poisoning from infectious E.coli, it is a slow and insidious poisoning.

Why GMO Food is Dangerous

Monsanto's GMO (genetically modified organism) technology inserts non-food genes, genes from other species, into the DNA of food, altering the very nature of food itself. In some cases these genes make the crops more tolerant to the Roundup Ready herbicide made by Monsanto and in other cases the genes abnormally cause the DNA of food cells to produce toxic proteins that act as pesticides.

Most people are not comfortable with the concept of altering the nature of food in a grand genetic experiment with unknown consequences. The idea of food producing its own internal toxin is equally abhorrent. After all, who wants to eat toxic food? Even fewer trust this technology in the hands of Monsanto, a company with a history of blatant disregard for human health. It was Monsanto that knowingly poisoned the planet with toxic PCBs.

The process of making GMO seeds also poses health risks. Viral promoter genes are used during this production process and become part of the DNA mix, posing a risk for new types of viral disease. An unintended side-effect of this production technology is chronic activation or suppression of normal genes in the modified plants. This alters the actual nutrient structure of food and the function of the proteins within that food – a very serious matter.

The entire process of producing GMO seeds is also unpredictable. It creates multiple random genetic events in every food cell invaded by the mutant genes. Because each gene doesn't just do one thing and is highly interactive with other genes, the production of GMO food is not consistent and therefore safety cannot be guaranteed – especially when you understand that our scientific knowledge of gene interdependencies is in its infancy.

Eating food that is mutated by other non-food species is a grand experiment to say the least. GMO mutants can transfer to the living bacteria in your digestive tract, as has been shown in animal experiments. This can adversely change the way your gut bacteria behave so that they create pesticides and become more resistant to your immune system and medical treatments. If the GMO mutants were to transfer to an existing infection in your digestive tract then it could create your own superbug.

Because the proteins in GMO food are structurally different than normal food they significantly increase the risk for allergy. Allergy is one form of inflammation that is likely to result from GMO food, but there are many other potential sources. These include the mis-metabolism of the food, the inherent toxicity of the food, and the pesticide residues on the food. These inflammatory problems of GMO food will additively contribute to other forms of inflammation such as pollution and stress and add to the total inflammation burden sets the stage for many diseases. It is likely that GMO food will have a significant impact on pregnancy problems and developmental problems in children. At this time nobody can rule out GMO as a possible causative factor in Autism, as the rates of both have risen together. A recent re-evaluation of data provided by Monsanto showed that various types of GMO corn caused significant inflammatory organ damage to rats.

It has now been shown that the health consequence of eating high amounts of Roundup Ready residue that is being sprayed in ever-higher amounts on GMO crops is the disruption of your endocrine system. A recent study shows that these residues of Roundup Ready are highly interactive with sex hormones and significantly disrupt their function.

A 2008 Austrian government study showed that feeding GMO corn to mice for multiple generations resulted in fertility issues and weakened kidneys, as well as changes in metabolic pathways involved with inflammation, cholesterol, and protein.

GMO crops are also drastically and adversely altering soil quality. In fact, soil animals such as earthworms are now found to have incorporated GMO mutant corn genes into their cells. This finding is of extreme importance to potential human health problems. There is certainly nothing preventing this from happening to humans.

For more information on the devastating health consequences of consuming GMO foods read Jeffrey Smith's books, "Seeds of Deception" and "Genetic Roulette."

You may be wondering the obvious; if GMOs are so dangerous to eat then why are they allowed in the food supply?

Corporate Cronyism - A Corrupt FDA Places the Public in Danger

We now know that FDA scientists originally working on the issue of the safety of GMO food had considerable concerns that included allergies, toxins, adverse nutritional effects, and new diseases.¹ They urged long-term studies but were ignored by FDA management who instead decided that GMO food was "substantially equivalent" to normal food. In 1992 these managers issued the following policy statement in the Federal Register, "The agency is not aware of any information showing that foods derived by these new methods differ from other foods in any meaningful or uniform way." In retrospect, that policy, which stands to this day, was a flat out lie and a treasonous betrayal of the public trust.

Court cases have forced into public view the documents expressing the concerns of the FDA scientists. You can read them all at this link to the BioIntegrity.Org website.² In fact, rushing GMO foods to market also represents a serious breach of scientific integrity by the overall research community.

Today, the FDA is a world leader in proteomic technology, the advanced analysis of protein structure and function. Italian researchers using proteomics have already proven beyond any question that GMO food is so genetically different from normal food that it cannot possibly be considered substantially equivalent.³ Certainly the FDA could discover this fact for themselves in a matter of hours. Why are FDA scientists in handcuffs and not taking action?

³ <http://tiny.cc/Italian>

Part of the FDA management team's culture of corruption is a revolving door with the various companies they are supposed to be regulating, the very definition of corporate cronyism. These shenanigans have had the net effect of the FDA acting primarily as a police force bully representing various powerful lobbies that buy protection and marketing favors, while stomping on the rights of the little guys like organic family farms and consumers. In the case of food, Monsanto wins the gold medal for influence pedaling at the expense of human health.

One of the more egregious examples of cronyism is Michael Taylor. He was an FDA staff lawyer and Executive Assistant to the FDA Commissioner from 1976 to 1981. From 1981 to 1991 he worked at the law firm of King and Spaulding, acting as Monsanto's lawyer and lobbyist. He was a major proponent for overturning the Delaney Clause, a 1958 law prohibiting the introduction of known carcinogens to processed foods, a law Monsanto hated and which was eventually overturned by Clinton in 1996. His main responsibility during this time was gaining regulatory approval of Monsanto's genetically modified cancer-causing bovine growth hormone (rBGH).

To complete his efforts on the bovine growth hormone issue Taylor went back to work for the FDA in 1991 with the title Deputy Commissioner for Policy at the Food and Drug Administration. He was directly responsible for writing the FDA policy on "substantial equivalence" which initially ushered in the rBGH era and to this day enables Monsanto to market its GMO mutated food with no appropriate oversight by the FDA as to safety. He also formulated policy that prevented milk producers from informing consumers that their milk was free of bovine growth hormone – intentionally preventing consumers from being able to tell what was in the milk product they were consuming.

After accomplishing his dirty work, he left the FDA in 1994 and went to work for Monsanto as Vice President for Public Policy, working on Monsanto's long range plans. More recently, he became a Senior Fellow at Resources for the Future (RFF) and Director of the Risk, Resources and Environmental Management division. In this role, he strategized how to get Monsanto's GMO crops into Africa, working closely with the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the Rockefeller Foundation. He also worked closely with the Bush Administration, and is the point man in helping an elite agenda to spread GMO seeds and biotech dependence around the world.⁴

You guessed it – now he is back at the FDA in a new position the Obama Administration created – Senior

⁴ http://www.organicconsumers.org/articles/article_18866.cfm

Advisor to the Commissioner, working primarily on issues of food safety!⁵ “I am pleased to welcome Mike Taylor back to the FDA,” Commissioner of Food and Drugs Margaret A. Hamburg, M.D., said in announcing Taylor’s appointment. “His expertise and leadership on food safety issues will help the agency to develop and implement the prevention based strategy we need to ensure the safety of the food we eat.”

As Monsanto, in anti-competitive collusion with Dow, takes their new GMO toxic and mutated corn to market, stacked with eight genes, it should come as no surprise that absolutely no safety testing is being required by the FDA.⁶ Never before have there been eight genes altered simultaneously within the cells of food. One gene is bad enough. Three is horrendous. But eight?

The fact that the FDA is not requiring extensive safety testing by independent sources of this highly unpredictable and dangerous technology is unthinkable. It is a grim day when the fox is in charge of the henhouse.

There Is No Good Reason for Monsanto’s GMOs

If you listen to Monsanto and their business cohorts such as Cargill, they state they are trying to feed the world. In reality, the world could eliminate Monsanto’s mutated food tomorrow and it would be a better place. It could also do without Cargill acting as an unregulated food banker, profiting on the manipulation of food sales at the expense of farmers in a way that is every bit as bad as the worst of Wall Street.⁷ There is no need for Monsanto’s GMO mutated seeds. They offer no advantages. It is an industry being propped up by unelected bureaucrats and elected officials on the receiving end of Monsanto’s multi-million dollar lobbying operation.

Michael Taylor is one example of corporate crony influence, there are many others.⁸ The USDA is profiting from Monsanto’s seeds that cannot be used the next growing season (the Terminator⁹ aspect of the problem). The EPA’s failure to regulate the amounts of Roundup Ready used on food is yet another scandal. It’s all about profits and control – while undermining the world’s farmers and the biodiversity and sustainability of crops.

Contrary to the Monsanto and Cargill propaganda, GMO technology does not increase crop yields, as has been fully documented in the Union of Concerned Scientists report titled Failure to Yield.¹⁰ And GMO crops are very bad for the carbon footprint.¹¹

The fact that the Obama administration¹² is actively forwarding Monsanto’s efforts should be a grave concern to every American.¹³ Of course, the last 16 years of Clinton and Bush also did everything in their power to help Monsanto. No wonder Americans are fed up. Politicians in both parties are beholden to the golden idol, not the best health interests of its citizens.

Take Back Our Food – Join the Fight

We the people can have a huge impact and we can change this serious threat to human health. Don’t buy GMOs food. GMOs permeate corn and soy products, beet sugar is now mutated, and wheat is next in line.¹⁴ If you aren’t sure how to avoid GMO foods and brands then follow the advice given on Jeffrey Smith’s Non-GMO shopping guide.¹⁵ Demand from your political representatives that all GMO food be labeled as containing GMOs. This isn’t just a political issue – this is about your personal health and the future of food.

CHILD EXECUTION REVERSED

By Juda Myers

Claire was sentenced to death in Las Vegas, Nevada. The saying goes, "What happens in Vegas stays in Vegas." But this has to be told. It's impossible to believe that any judge would rule in favor of the death penalty under any circumstance. But Jamie Stout, acting judge for the case, felt there was no other choice. A mock trial without a jury and without proper defense ended in the harshest verdict possible, determining that the child's crime against her mother was punishable by death. Claire's mother was torn. She knew what society thought and didn't have the strength to fight.

The execution was scheduled for November 9, 2009. Preparations were started and the clock was ticking to Claire's final breath. The play by play report appeared on Facebook with desperate pleas for prayer of a reversal. A miracle was needed. The evidence in Claire's favor was overwhelming but only the judge could reverse the order. Even then doctors would have to fight to save Claire's life.

Testimonies, with overwhelming evidence that could not be ignored, came moments after the procedure had begun. But would it be too late?

Claire began her life like any other child - created in the image of God. Conceived out of wedlock, her mother faced a very tough life. Drugs and another unplanned pregnancy 11 years earlier led to thoughts of hopelessness. Claire's sister was being raised by her grandparents. Claire would be just another burden or so her mother thought.

On the day of the execution people were insensitive to Claire's mother telling her it would all be over soon. No compassion for her or her child.

Jamie Stout was not only the judge in this case but she was also Claire's mother. Feeling alone without real choices Jamie had ruled without a hearing against her innocent child. However, hope remained in Jamie's friend Marina until literally the last moment.

Just outside the abortion clinic Jan's father waited helplessly for his daughter. He didn't want Claire to die but he thought he had no say. This was a woman's choice right? But Marina knew that wasn't true. So many lives were at stake here.

Marina was waiting outside the clinic for her dear friend. She pleaded with Jamie to just listen. Marina was desperate to save that baby but also to save Jamie too. Marina works at First Choice Pregnancy Services in Las Vegas and has seen the joy in mothers who made the right choice. She has also seen the despair and trauma in women who did not.

With Jamie laying inside the car writhing in pain she listened to Marina as best she could. Marina asked Jamie if she wanted the baby. "It's too late Marina," Jamie cried. "It may not be," Marina quickly replied. Marina asked again, "Do you want your baby? If you do you've got to decide now!" Both Jamie and her father wanted that second chance. The clock was ticking and there were no guarantees but the execution order had been reversed and they rushed to the emergency room.

Pam Caylor, director of First Choice played a vital part in saving Claire. She knew that laminaria could be removed from the cervix. Laminaria is a match stick like seaweed product used to dilate the cervix. Moisture causes them to expand forcing the cervix to open making it possible to remove the baby in a day or two. Jamie experienced intense pain during this process.

Marina had asked Mrs. Caylor for advice about Jamie. If the baby had not been killed first by an injection into its heart, there would be a chance of saving her. Pam called doctors trying to find one that would remove the laminaria but found rejection over and over. Finally a doctor agreed. The hospital was slow and reluctant to take the situation seriously but the doctor attended to Jamie. He came out of the room very discouraged saying he couldn't remove the laminaria. He had never done this before. Mrs. Caylor stood firm, looked at the doctor, told him that he certainly could remove them and to get back in there and try again. So he did. Using more force he successfully removed thirteen laminaria. Jamie had been told there were only three. The abortion doctor had placed more laminaria to speed the normal three day process up to two days without Jan's knowledge.

It wasn't over. Since Jamie's cervix had already dilated a great deal it was a danger to Claire's survival. The doctor had no confidence that Nia would survive. The prayers went out again along with appreciation for all that was done so far.

Claire's life hung on a miracle for forty-eight hours. That was the time doctors watched to see if the cervix would close on its own. With Jan lying in bed, her father and friends by her side, the report was given. A miracle had happened and the cervix had closed up without stitches, without any problems. Claire was given another chance at life.

Prayers were answered. Sonograms showed a healthy active little girl dancing inside her 'now safe' womb.

I had the overwhelming pleasure of seeing Claire for myself, while her mom and big sister swelled with emotion. The room was filled with a joy I find hard to describe. Life filled the room.

Jamie has since turned her life around. She has given her life to Jesus Christ. She knows the peace that passes all understanding and has a hope for the future like never before. Jamie has no regrets.

Jamie went into labor on Marina's birthday a couple of weeks ago. It was as if Claire wanted to show gratitude to Marina for intervening and saving her life.

Jamie said, "For the first time my head is so clear and I know I have a purpose."

These lives are just a few that are changed forever because of the dedication of people like Marina and Pam Caylor. My life also was saved because of people with conviction that all life deserves a lifetime. Pregnant from an 8 man rape my mother chose life for me. She, like Jamie, has no regrets and I am forever grateful.

Won't you consider standing for or speaking out for the unborn? People like Jamie, Claire and I will thank you for life.

We shouldn't have exceptions in the right to life.

WHEN DOES LIFE BEGIN?

When does life begin? It's an all important to question that determines when a baby is given the rights described in the Declaration of Independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

The abortion argument is really silly because they play around with the concept of life and when a fetus actually becomes a human being. It all comes down to the question, "How do you know when a baby's life begins?" This is not a biological question. In fact, biology has nothing to do with it. The answer is so simple that a child can understand it and he doesn't know the first thing about biology but adults just can't seem to grasp it.

Everyone can safely agree that the baby is alive on the day it is born. But what about the day before that? Life doesn't begin incrementally. It's not like the baby was any more alive on the day he was born than the day before. Conception is a radical event that only happens once in a human's existence and it's so simple that anyone can understand it. But people do not want to hear it. It's the proverbial elephant in the room that abortion advocates don't want to talk about but we need to stand up for life because it's the right thing to do.

"...judgment is turned away backward, and justice standeth afar off: for truth is fallen in the street, and equity cannot enter. Yea, truth faileth; and he that departeth from evil maketh himself a prey: and the LORD saw it, and it displeased him that there was no judgment. And he saw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no intercessor..." (Isaiah 59:14-16)

RECALL NOTICE

The Maker of all human beings (GOD) is recalling all units manufactured, regardless of make or year, due to a serious defect in the primary and central component of the heart. Free will led to a malfunction in the original prototype units codenamed Adam and Eve, resulting in the reproduction of the same defect in all subsequent units. This defect has been technically termed "Sub-sequential Internal Non-Morality," or more commonly known as S.I.N., as it is primarily expressed. Some of the symptoms include:

1. Loss of direction
2. Foul vocal emissions
3. Amnesia of origin
4. Lack of peace and joy
5. Selfish or violent behavior
6. Depression or confusion in the mental component
7. Fearfulness
8. Idolatry
9. Rebellion

The Manufacturer, who is neither liable nor at fault for this defect, is providing factory-authorized repair and service free of charge to correct this defect. The Repair Technician, Jesus, has most generously offered to bear the entire burden of the staggering cost of these repairs. There is no additional fee required. The number to call for all repairs is: P-R-A-Y-E-R.

Once connected, please upload your burden of SIN through the REPENTANCE procedure. Next, download ATONEMENT from the Repair Technician, Jesus, into the Heart component. No matter how big or small the SIN defect is, Jesus will replace it with:

1. Love
2. Joy
3. Peace
4. Patience
5. Gentleness
6. Goodness

7. Faith
8. Meekness
9. Temperance

Please see the operating manual, the B.I.B.L.E. (Basic Instructions Before Leaving Earth) for further details on the use of these fixes.

WARNING: Continuing to operate the human being unit without following the operating manual voids any manufacturer warranties, exposing the unit to dangers, problems, and acts of hypocrisy too numerous to list and will result in the human unit being permanently impounded. For free emergency service, call on Jesus.

DANGER: The human being units not responding to this recall action will have to be scrapped in the furnace (Lake of Fire). The SIN defect will not be permitted to enter Heaven so as to prevent contamination of that facility. Thank you for your attention!

Please assist where possible by notifying others of this important recall notice, and you may contact the Father any time by "Knee mail."

LETTERS TO THE MINISTRY

SUGGESTION TO TERMINATE YOUR LIFE!

AN OPEN LETTER FROM A PATRIOT

A few days before Christmas, I paid a routine visit to my cardiologist, he checked and found no real change in my condition. "Come back in four months was the verdict. Then he added something that on reflection really shook me up. He suggested that I should, with my loved ones, consider the possibility of termination of my life. Now being 90 years old, 91 soon after you get this letter, I have no illusions about the length of my life. As a Christian, I am prepared to meet my Lord, but only when He decides to call me unto Himself. But there is being touted among Western lands, especially the idea of putting people "to sleep" if their condition and advanced years might justify termination and ease problems of care and cost especially costs both social and individual.

A writer for the Chalcedon "Think Tank" located in the Sierra Mountains in California in the latest (NOV/DEC 2009 Issue) of their magazine "Faith For All of Life" made an analysis of HR 3200, then the House Version of the Health Reform Bill. They found six references in Subtitle C, Section 1253 of the Bill. Typical wording: "...the reasons why the development of such an order is beneficial to the individual and the individual's family and the reasons why an order (to terminate-jmc) (end-of-life-counseling) should be updated periodically as the health of the individual changes. (P. 426 of the Bill).

And there are more than the six statements referred to.

The writer for Chalcedon noted: "HR 3200 glaringly reflects the messianic pretensions of the welfare state. This is not authority as delegated to the state by God: it is the state pretending to be God."

The State of Texas has been wrestling with this subject for several years and in 2006-2007 tried to get a consensus on end-of-life procedures. No consensus was reached at that time. Jerri Ward. An Austin pro-life attorney told of one session. She said for the kind of end-of-life planning we see in HR 3200" every time I went into that meeting room (where the committee was meeting) I felt like I was confronting evil." "I saw the face of evil in their utilitarian mindset."

As Charles Krauthammer (not a Conservative) said in part: "and when you include it in a healthcare reform whose major object is to bend the cost care downward, you have to be a fool or a knave to deny that it's intended to point you gently in a certain direction, toward the corner of the room where stands a ghostly figure, scythe in hand offering release."

I am fully aware of the necessity of death, but I do not want the decision for my passing to be made by some white-coated doctor of uncertain belief nor by any of the phalanx of bureaucrats up to and including ethically challenged Kathleen Sebelius from Kansas, who is now the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

If the Health Reform Bill passes as now seems likely, it should be repealed by a new Congress made up of friends of the Constitution, that Constitution which has contributed to America's not list greatness.

For God and Country,
Joseph M. Canfield

Dear Pastor Torell,

I have not been in touch for quite a while but you once phoned me when I was living in Kansas. We had a mutual acquaintance with Paul Cunningham. I see by the books you offer we also both know or know of Howard Pittman. I have several pictures of him and I together. He came every year to the little church I attended in Omak Washington. I had him and his wife to my house for lunch. He is a very kind and loving man.

I am writing just to let you know how very much I appreciate the tremendous amount of research and writing you have done. It was one of your newsletters almost 4 years ago that the Lord used to start teaching me about dispensationalism and Christian's misplaced loyalty to Zionism. I never knew how that newsletter got to my mail box, but I am very glad it did. Since that time I have devoted most of my spare time to the study of the Word and what is going on in the world, sometimes spending whole days researching. What a joy it is to find the truth!

I will ever be grateful for all I have learned through you. May the Lord's blessing be overflowing to you and your family.

In the Son,
Louise
